Remedial Innovation in School Education

*"Yoga is the journey of the self, through the self, to the self."
-The Bhagavad Gita*

Since its inception in the year 2015, June 21st is celebrated as The International Day of Yoga all over the world. This idea was proposed by our Prime Minister, Mr. Narendra Modi. Yoga is essentially a spiritual discipline based on an extremely subtle science, which focuses on bringing harmony between mind and body. It is an art and science of healthy living. The word 'Yoga' is derived from the Sanskrit root 'Yuj', meaning 'to join' or 'to yoke' or 'to unite'. As per Yogic scriptures the practice of Yoga leads to the union of individual consciousness with that of the Universal Consciousness, indicating a perfect harmony between the mind and body, Man & Nature. RISE has been striving hard to foster emotional, psychological and educational well-being of its children who, otherwise in daily life are going through stream of stress. Working in the same track, children of our Rise took part in the International Yoga Day on June 21st in the Yoga Session that was organized by our Prime Minister at Connaught place. The aim of Yoga Session was Self-realization, to overcome all kinds of sufferings leading to 'the state of liberation' (Moksha) or 'freedom' (Kaivalya) and happy and relaxed face of children after exhaustive session ensured we would attain what we are aiming for.

Saving the Mother Nature

Earth provides enough to satisfy every man's needs but not every man's greed - Mahatma Gandhi

Humans are both creatures and moulder of their environment, which gives them physical sustenance and affords them the opportunity for intellectual, moral, social and spiritual growth. In the long and tortuous evolution of the human race on this planet a stage has been reached when, through the rapid acceleration of science and alternatives and urgently reduce the production and excessive use of single-use plastic that is polluting our oceans, damaging marine life celebrated environment day through plantation drive and pledging to reduce use of plastics, recycling of waste, conservation of water and soil and electricity. The event began with sapling plantation drive in the community park by children. Next the children put up banner, posters, cards throughout the community explaining various community members about the feasible techniques of sustainability like switching to energy saving bulbs, rain water conservation and reducing plastic waste etc.. The children were next taught various craft activities they can do using waste plastic. Rina (RISE beneficiary) made beautiful flowers using discarded plastic bottles. The educators were surprised seeing the creativity of the students.

technology, humans have acquired the power to transform their environment in countless ways and on an unprecedented scale. The United Nations, aware that the protection and improvement of the human environment is a major issue, which affects the well-being of peoples and economic development throughout the world, designated 5 June as the World Environment Day. The theme for this year is 'Beat Plastic Pollution', which "urges governments, industry, communities and individuals to come together and explore sustainable

Regarding the unsung Heroes

Father's Day is celebrated worldwide to recognize the contribution that fathers and father figures make to the lives of their children. This day celebrates fatherhood and male parenting. While almost any man can father a child, there is so much more to the important role of being dad in a child's life. This year RISE marked the date and celebrated Father's Day on 17th June.

In slums of Sangam Vihar, where the struggle is of survival and extreme stress surrounds live, these fathers are central to the emotional well-being of their children; they are capable caretakers and disciplinarians. They have proved time and again that if your child's father is affectionate, supportive, and involved, he can contribute greatly to your child's cognitive, language, and social development, as well as academic achievement, a strong inner core resource, sense of well-being, good self-esteem, and authenticity.

At RISE we understand that child's primary relationship with his/her father can affect all of child's relationships from birth to death, including those with friends, lovers, and spouses. Those early patterns of interaction with father are the very patterns that will be projected forward into all relationships...forever more: not only your child's intrinsic idea of whom he/she is as he/she relates to others, but also, the range of what your child considers acceptable and loving. Girls will look for men who hold the patterns of good old dad, for after all, they know how "to do that."

Therefore, if father was kind, loving, and gentle, they will reach for those characteristics in men. Girls will look for, in others, what they have experienced and become familiar with in childhood. Boys on the other hand, will model themselves after their fathers. They will look for their father's approval in everything they do, and copy those behaviours that they recognize as both successful and familiar. Thus, if dad was abusive, controlling, and dominating, those will be the patterns that their sons will imitate and emulate. However, if father is loving, kind, supportive, and protective, boys will want to be that. Human beings are social animals and we learn by modelling behaviour. In fact, all primates learn how to survive and function successfully in the world through social imitation. Those early patterns of interaction are all children know, and it is those patterns that effect how they feel about themselves, and how they develop. Your child is vulnerable to those early patterns and incorporates those behavioural qualities in his/her repertoire of social exchange. So, on this important day, RISE Educators ensured that Fathers were called upon at the centres, appreciated for their selfless love and sacrifices and were counselled further towards healthy parenting. Children presented cards to their Fathers and made sure that they felt special through various activities. The day ended with all smiles, motivation and the backbone of the family feeling soaked in love and respect.

Celebration of Harmony on Eid

Ramadan is an entire month during which Muslims focus on purifying themselves, getting closer to God, and growing in their knowledge/faith. During Ramadan Muslims fast from sunrise to sunset. Eid al-Fitr was originated by the Islamic prophet Muhammad. It is observed on the first day of the Islamic month of Shawwal at the end of the month of Ramadan, during which Muslims undergo a period of fasting. At RISE, we made sure children from all sects know the importance of Eid and Ramadan and encouraged the philosophy of donate and share in life amongst children.

Singing New Tunes

*One good thing about music, when it hits you, you feel no pain
-Bob Marley*

There's nothing in the world like the sound of your favourite song coming on, it just gets right into your head and your body and makes you move. Or maybe it takes you on a journey to a faraway place and time, where you languish in a memory of times gone by and people who are no longer present. Some of our favourite songs can lift us up out of depression and sorry, and make an otherwise horrible day suddenly seem like it's not so bad. World Music Day celebrates music in all its forms and the impact it's had on the world and the human spirit. Fete de la Musique or World Music Day 2017 is celebrated on June 21, marking the beginning of summer solstice, i.e., the longest day of the year. Initiated by France in 1982, World Music day has been adopted by over 120 nations across the world, including India.

World Music Days aims at transcending boundaries when it comes to music and musicians. Music holds the key to universal peace. Music is important; each musical piece tells a story about the musician, his culture, his ethos and his homeland. Music is a form of entertainment which comes at no cost, but with the rich experience it carries along, it many a times leaves other forms of entertainment far behind. RISE centres utilise these characteristics of music, to the best they can. With the socio-economic condition in India, not all can afford the luxury of watching movies every other weekend, or going for trips. For them, these are leisure's of life. Music, for them, comes at no cost. With the advent of mobile phones equipped with FM radio, and cheap Chinese smartphones with all features necessary, music has made its way through, to mostly all homes. This coupled with the benefits of daily dose of music, gives RISE educators, to not only inculcate the habit of regularly listening to music in students, but also celebrate days like the World Music Day.

The celebrations started off with an interaction between the students and the educators about their favourite type of music, their favourite song, singer, etc. Educators then engage students in a quick competition of Antaakshiri, wherein the class is divided into two teams, each facing off against each other, to become the Music Leaders of the class, giving them the much fought after bragging rights. In order to include everyone in the competition, this Antaakshiri requires every student to participate for them to win. Following this battle of music, is a session on the history of Indian music, which ranges from introducing students to cult Hindi music, to an introduction to the best music directors and producers India has produced. After this, with the help of associations AROH Foundation has with various school, colleges and corporates, few of the centres had the privilege of live music performance by volunteers. May it be a guitar which came into the class, or a dholak, students were engrossed and mesmerised with the performances put up by the volunteers. Volunteers also encouraged students to listen to music daily, and if possible, learn to play an instrument, to be the stress, may it be of live or of studies. This summed up the celebrations for the day, and students went back home, grooving, tripping on music they were introduced to, all happy, and looking forward to the challenges that would come on their way.

Creating a childhoods worth cherishing .. Neelam

One of my dreams was to help the helpless children that are not in the condition to use the resources and due to that it hampers the life of the children. I have been a victim of some circumstances. So I didn't want same thing to happen to the other children. Due to lack of resources and lack of opportunities many things have been snatched from the hands of the individual. So it's important to have equal amount of resources distribution. My family background was very poor and when my mother became ill my father had to do extra work to get the money for the treatment of my mother. When you live in a life surrounding with poverty life is not easy and every time you have to face challenges in different aspects of day to day life. Many children of my vicinity were dropping off their dreams surrendering to these extreme circumstances. It was unbearable for me to relive those childhood moment again and so I wanted to do something for them. AROH Foundation gave a golden opportunity to me for fulfil my dream through teaching and helping them and by making them follow their dream. Now I could not only help these children but also their whole family and my community to be aware, motivated and awake about opportunities, rights, duties and also challenges that they have. I can't thank AROH enough to be able to make me so important as a tool of change in my community.

Smiling Shifa ...

Shifa, 13 years, is the one of the student of AROH Foundation. Shifa lives in Delhi with her siblings and her father. Shifa's mother is no more and her father is a painter . After the death of her mother shifa's father was not in a condition to take care of his children so Shifa, being the elder most, take cares of her brother and sister. Shifa was very quiet girl. When she first came in the RISE centre she had no interest in studying so obviously she was very weak in her studies too. She barely could write even a single alphabet. Her lethargic attitude towards studies was making things worse.

Her Educator Miss Lata had to adopt a different strategy for her. Emotional well-being was put in priority and so she was counselled a lot towards positive thinking and living. A grief struck Shifa was shown positive aspects of life and then was introduced to pencil and letters. Once she was motivated enough, her learning ability also improved. She eventually became a normal student of the class.

Now after 2 years in RISE, Shifa is a happy and chirpy girl and shows continuous improvement in her grades too. She thanks her teacher Ms Lata for this change. She says, "I never knew I was so depressed and dull. Lata didi helped me know a better life and shown me a different aspect of thinking. Now I want to study, learn, grow and earn for my family and help my father in supporting in my younger siblings."
